

Rhonda was very well-prepared and was incredibly knowledgeable about this subject which made attending class and learning the material much easier. She was always prepared and is clearly very passionate about this topic. She is also very personable and easy to talk to when we have questions about the subject in class.

She's very kind and understanding, also gives clear explanations

Focused on the key ideas and their applications, without getting lost in the details.

The feedback I received via email and on assignments was incredibly clear and helpful in completing course assignments and understanding course material.

All course topics were relevant, especially brief introduction to Gamma distribution and false discovery rate.

I learned a lot more about R code, especially with functions, through this class.
